Now Christmas Was Spent—The Chinese Question in a New Aspect—New Oakland Pier Depot—Price Fancies.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 29.
Holiday week is proverbially a dull time for news, and this year it has been no exception to the general rule. City editors have torn their hair in the hopeless endeavor to find work for their reporters, and the reader, who always knows more about running a newspaper than a veteran managing editor, has included the morning papers in a sweeping anathema of the weather, the coffee, and other things disagreeable. Yet Christmas day was one long to be remembered in this city for its cloudless skies, bright sunshine and exhilarating air. The heavy rains had cleared the atmosphere and the distant parts of the coast range seemed to be only a few miles away, while Mount Diablo appeared to be within reach of an easy "constitutional" before breakfast. Everyone seemed to turn out in honor of the day, but there was a Sunday stillness in all the business streets and it seemed in very fact to be a day of rest to all—an unusual occurrence here as the busy city generally tries to work seven days in the week, and to regret that there are not more than twenty-four hours in each day. A large amount of liquor was drunk on Christmas eve and the result was shown in the number of police arrests on Sunday. The city prison was packed with people who disregarded the injunction of Peace on earth, good will to men. There were an astonishing number of fights, one of the most ludicrous of which was between a Hibernian couple who fell to mauling each other because they could not settle the question of whether or not the Christmas tree should be decorated with lights. The fight occurred on the 25th or the 26th instant.

THE COOLIE INVASION.
Little is said here now about the influx of Chinese, but the fact remains that the immigration is steadily increasing, and the prospect is that it will continue to increase until some arbitrary method for checking it is adopted. Vice-Consul Bee, who has a tender regard for the Mongolians because he draws a fat salary from the Chinese exchequer, has recently furnished statistics of immigration for the past year, showing that the ratio of increase has been very small. It may be that his figures are accurate, but certainly observation in this city tends to disprove them. The incoming steamers seldom fail to bring less than 800 Chinese, while they frequently land here fully 1200. Now returning steamers never carry over 600 Chinese. To be sure, a large number of the immigrants brought here from China within the last year have been sent out to work on the Southern and the Northern Pacific Railroads, but eventually they find their way back here again. The Chinese don't fancy getting too far away from the seaboard. They do not thrive at the East because of race prejudice and the greater competition in the departments which they monopolize here—domestic service and laundrying. All along the Pacific Coast, from Alaska to Patagonia, the Chinese may be found, but it is a well-established fact that the interior sees very few of them.

CHINESE ENCROACHMENT IN THIS CITY.
In this city they are certainly increasing rapidly. Any close observer can see this readily by walking the streets. A year ago Kearney and Montgomery streets were comparatively free from them. Now they jostle you on every corner and stand staring in at all the windows. The best promenades are ruined by them, as they are as offensive to the sense of smell as to that of sight, and they are densely ignorant of the rules of the road in walking. The Chinese add an element of the picturesque to San Francisco streets, but it is dearly obtained in the annoyance which their presence causes. They are so bad that they would confine themselves to Chinatown. But the latter is getting to be a very elastic settlement. It is gradually blotting the business portion of the city and soon they will have a new road which will split it in two. The Chinese manufacturers of cigars and clothing now monopolize the lower part of Clay and Commercial streets, formerly occupied by wholesale dealers in provisions. They have filled all the old buildings and when they gain a foothold in a block it is doomed. White occupants desert it and the owners, nothing loth, rent it out to the heathen at a rate far cheaper than the commercial streets at noon look like a section of Chinatown, both sides being filled with long lines of Celestials on the way to the quarter for their midday meal. Several large factories and counting houses have been started in Clay street just above Kearney, and the white manufacturers declare that they cannot hold out much longer, as their Chinese rivals can turn out, and yet make a good profit.

THE DANGER IN THE FUTURE.
And just here lies the chief danger of Chinese immigration. So soon as the Chinese become in any large numbers employers of Mongolians, then look out for a swarm of Mongolians. Contracts will be made and the lowest sort of coolie artisans will be brought over. The Chinese manufacturing places in this city now are not numerous, but they have all grown up within the last three years. If course they employ Chinese labor exclusively and it only needs a greater demand for a large increase of immigrants. The manufacturers here can afford to pay twice or three times the amount which a workman could earn in China, and this inducement will be strong enough to conquer the Chinese love of the native land. This is a danger which no one at the East can be made to see in all its proportions. The Eastern people are fond of getting off the state platitudes that the Americans need never fear competition with an inferior race. The great monopolists on this coast all enunciate the same doctrine. Charles Crocker is fond of repeating this empty bit of braggadocio. That it means nothing is shown by the example of this city and coast. In every pursuit which the Chinese have invaded they have driven out the whites, and they only need time and opportunity to enlarge indefinitely the circle of industries which they can control.

A NEW DEPOT AT OAKLAND WHARF.
The new year will witness the opening of the large new passenger depot at the Oakland wharf. Anyone who has ever traveled across the bay or who has come in by either of the overland routes will recall the gloomy cattle-pen which for years has been made to do duty as a depot. It is open to the chilly wind which sweeps in from the bay; it is damp, filthy, uncomfortable—a disgrace to a great corporation like the Central Pacific. There is no opportunity for amusement while waiting for the boats, which are frequently a quarter of an hour in getting into the slip and discharging their load. The new buildings are on a stone pier called the mole, only a short distance to the south of the present wharf. They are a quarter of a mile nearer to Oakland than the present depot. The new depot building is 1,000 feet long, 240 feet wide, and the apex of the roof is 65 feet from the ground. The structure, which is mainly of glass and wood, was begun on the 6th of last July. It has an arched roof of glass and iron and the effect of the architecture is very graceful. The center of the building will be reserved for overland trains and wide macadamized roads have been made for teams and carriages. There are several large waiting rooms, a restaurant, etc.—in fact, like the great passenger depots of the Eastern railroads. The place will be illuminated with the electric light. Owing to some trouble with the machinery the building will not be thrown open to the public until January 8. The building and equipments will cost fully $200,000.

MEN WHO PAY HEAVY TAXES.
A list of some of the heavy tax-payers of the city shows some curious figures and suggests queer reflections. James Phelan, the billiard table manufacturer, who is building the immense block of stores on Market street, is put down with paying over into the treasury for this year's taxes $25,000. Higgin pays $19,696; Charles Crocker, $13,943.70, and E. J. Baldwin, $11,547.70. Opposite the name of Nicholas Luning we find the sum of $20,718.55. To any one who knows Luning's characteristics this means a great deal. Of all the millionaires in the city he probably likes best to take in coin, and is most loth to part with it. It seems next to a miracle that he should consent to pay out so much money as this, and no doubt his heart-strings were grievously wrenched. Luning is credited with $20,000,000, made principally in real estate. His fortune was founded away back in the early part of the '50's as a "steamer sharp"—that is he lent money at a ruinous rate of usage to merchants who had to have it to make their payments at the East. If they allowed payment to go until the next steamer they might as well shut up their doors, as their credit would be gone. Luning stepped in, offered the required cash, and deducted the heavy interest from the sum and paid over the balance. He was far-sighted and he never built up his fortune for the largest part of his property has come to him through foreclosure of mortgage. Like Michael Reese, he is a bad man for a city to have as a large owner of real estate, since he never builds and never makes any improvements upon the houses which he owns. He will calmly allow a building to rot down before he will spend a cent on repairs. All his tenants agree to do their own repairs. Thus the old man knows to a penny what his income from any piece of property will amount to. He is a German, stout, well-built and finely preserved, and his erect figure may be seen every day on Montgomery and Pine streets.

A CHANGE IN MANAGEMENT.

To-day, one of the original proprietors of the Times, and its editor from the start, retires from this journal. Messrs. Yarnell, Caystille & Mathes, of the Mirror Printing House, who have owned an interest in the paper since its first issue, purchase the balance of the enterprise and assume its business and editorial management. The present responsible head of the paper retires from his post with the deepest regret. His only solace is in the reflection that better and worthier men will fill his place. Messrs. Yarnell, Caystille & Mathes are well known gentlemen in this community. They are men of business ability and enterprise, and their success as editors and newspaper men is fully exemplified in the Weekly Mirror, which is known and read and appreciated throughout the whole Southern country. Thus far the Times has been a success, especially in a financial sense. When it is asserted that the paper has made money from the first day, it is said with the knowledge that the books of the concern will fully bear out the assertion. Under the able management of the new proprietors and editors the paper will be more of a success than ever before. It will continue to grow and expand. It will continue to make money, and it will continue to be a credit to the city as well as to its owners.

ARIZONA'S development during the past year has been simply marvelous. New towns have sprung up throughout the Territory, miles of railroad have been built within her borders and thousands of people have been added to her population. During the past year the mineral output of the Territory has been larger than ever before, almost $10,000,000 of the precious metals being added to the world's wealth from her rich and prosperous mines. The future of Arizona is more than bright. With the abatement of the Apache and cowboy nuisances, she will make rapid strides, and with the development of her territory and her mineral resources she will soon take a front rank among the western mineral empires.

JAMES GORDON BENNETT has determined to make another effort to reach the Pole. He left London for St. Petersburg, yesterday, with the intention of conferring with the Russian Government on the subject of making further Arctic investigations.

THE total yield of bullion in the Tombstone district since the discovery of the camp amounts to $7,350,200.83. Of this sum $3,155,000 has been paid out in dividends by the various mining companies on the lode.

DURING the year just past there have been 5,382 failures of business enterprises throughout the country, with a loss of $81,000,000.

TO-day's edition of the Times consists of seventeen columns of reading matter, fully two-thirds of which is original.

RAILROAD DEVELOPMENT IN THE EAST.

The Assassins' Trial—An Exodus of Negroes from South Carolina—Financial Matters—Figures from Arizona.

[Associated Press Dispatches.]

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 30.—The increase and extension of railroad interests lying west and southwest of this city, having St. Louis for their eastern and northern terminus and outlet has been simply wonderful, and is resulting in the opening up of a very rapid development of a great empire, a large portion of which has been heretofore without railroad facilities. From a long article on railroad progress, published in the Post dispatches this afternoon, the following condensed statement is made: The Iron Mountain system, embracing the Iron Mountain, the International and Great Northern, the Texas and Pacific, added 573 miles of new road during this year. There are two short branches on the Iron Mountain of 40 miles; extension of the Texas Pacific from Baird to Steris, 370 miles; Whitesboro' to Fort Worth, 71 miles; the completion of the road from Shreveport, La., to New Orleans, 226 miles; and the extension of the International and Great Northern from New Braunfels to Laredo, on the Rio Grande, 84 miles. All these lines run through rich cotton, sugar or timber country, which is being developed very fast. In addition a line has been surveyed from Knobel, Ark., on the Iron Mountain Road, to Alexandria, La., which will be vigorously pushed next year, and when completed will form an important link in a short route from St. Louis to New Orleans, on the west side of the Mississippi river.

WASHINGTON WHISPERS.

An Exodus of Negroes from South Carolina—A Title Decision.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—The South Carolina politicians now here are considerably disturbed over the information from Charleston that an exodus fever has broken out among the colored plantation hands, and that already several thousands have made arrangements to go to Arkansas. So general has the movement become that it is feared there will be an almost total loss of crops in three or four counties next year.

THE TOMBSTONE TITLE CASES.

Acting Attorney-General Phillips on the 24th instant submitted to the President his opinion in regard to the Tombstone, Arizona, cases, which was to-day referred to the Interior Department. His opinion is in substance that the location of town sites cannot deprive persons of mineral rights previously acquired. Those having previously preempted mineral land have lawfully a right to go ahead and take out mineral in the ground of a town site, but they must not destroy any of the town improvements or streets that its surface may be preserved in the town, but minerals underneath the surface belong to the parties who have preempted the mineral land there, but such minerals must be taken out without detriment or injury to the town.

THE PRESIDENT'S RECEPTION.

The President's reception will be after the usual form.

THE TEDIUS TRIAL.

Guiteau Wishes Everybody a Happy New Year.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—The afternoon session of the trial of the assassin of President Garfield, James A. Guiteau, continued today. The proceedings were mainly to the preparation and arrangement of points for the forthcoming arguments. Finally the hour for adjournment having arrived Guiteau, who had been listlessly following the proceedings, yelled out: "To-morrow will be New Year's 1882. I shall receive to-morrow in the jail and shall be happy to see all who can succeed in getting in. I wish every one a happy New Year. Come, Secville, let's go home. Let's go home. The court then adjourned till Tuesday.

MORNING SESSION.

On the opening of the court this morning Guiteau called out: "One of my guards here (Cunningham) has got an eleven-pound baby for a New Year's present." [Laughter, in which the jury heartily joined.]

Dr. Gray resumed the story of his conversation with the prisoner in the jail. Guiteau interrupted with: "That don't correspond with your evidence yesterday, doctor; you went into inspiration then, Secville objected to the statement of the witness saying that he said nothing of inspiration or divine pressure, and urged that the witness must give the conversation or the substance of it as it occurred; that it would be in the province of the jury to say what should be inferred from it. The witness qualified his statement by adding: 'I asked him questions and my statement was based upon his replies.'"

Witness continuing, said: "The prisoner used the expression 'When I made up my mind.' Guiteau shouted: 'Making up my mind was the result of a grinding pressure. That's where the inspiration came in. Please get that right while you are about it.'"

Their depredations are large in value and extending over many months.

NEW YORK NOTES.

Interesting Financial Figures—A Murder at Sing Sing.

[Associated Press Dispatches.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—The total number of business failures for the year of 1881 throughout the United States is stated by the Mercantile Agency of R. G. Dan & Co. at 5,382, involving liabilities of slightly over eighty-one millions. The failures for the year previous were only 4,735, with liabilities of sixty-five millions. The increase, however, is regarded by the Agency as small in proportion to the enormous growth in the volume of trade, and especially in proportion to the number of persons engaged in business. Compared with 1878 the showing is strongly to the advantage of the year just closed, the failures in that year being 10,400 and the liabilities $334,000,000. In the year 1881 only one person in every 148 engaged in business has failed, while in 1880 the proportion was one in every 158, and in 1878 one in every 64. The figures of the year and facts presented are interpreted by the Agency as confirmatory of the impression that the trade of the country is prosperous and in a safe condition.

The Republican's Trinidad special says: This evening four cowboys attempted to "run the town." Marshal Kroger interfered, and the cowboys opened fire on him. He returned the fire, fatally wounding a cowboy named Brown and killing his horse. One cowboy was arrested; the other two escaped. The cowboys were not hurt. The fight resulted from an old feud and a big drunk. The cowboys had threatened Kroger's life.

A Correction.

YUMA, A. T., Dec. 31.—The following appeared in the Yuma Free Press this morning: At a meeting of the Southern Pacific Railroad stockholders, held at Yuma this week, the old directors were continued. Three hundred thousand dollars were voted for the construction of the Yuma and Port Isabel road and improvement of the harbor. The directors voted to pay the taxes of Yuma county, which proposition was opposed by Secretary Knapp, who, however, subsided when asked by President Crocker how many shares of stock he owned. The above statement was given the Free Press at the office of the railroad company at this point, but is denied by David Neahr, one of the directors of the Southern Pacific Company. It seems the statement to the Free Press was given for a joke, or for some other purpose.

ARIZONA.

A Few Facts About its Wonderful Development.

[Associated Press Dispatches.]

TUCSON, Dec. 31.—The Star will publish to-morrow morning a review of the progress of the Territory during the year 1881, from which the following points are condensed: The S. P. R. R. has extended their line during the year 227 miles, besides getting through the almost impassable barriers near El Paso and building the Rio Grande bridge and repairing 60 miles of track caused by the washouts. They have built four large hotels: one at Yuma, Tucson, Bowie and Deming, at a total cost of $86,000. They have built depots at San Simon, Bowie and El Paso, and shops, round-houses and machine shops at the latter places, and have greatly enlarged their depots at Tucson, and have erected other buildings. The company pay out about $1,000,000 in wages per year on the Arizona divisions. The tonnage and passenger travel has greatly increased over last year. The total population of the Territory is estimated at not less than 65,000; stock over 300,000, of which 96,000 are cattle and 104,000 are sheep, which average over two and a half pounds of wool per head. The grain product of six counties out of nine in the Territory is as follows: Pima, Maricopa, Pinal, Cochise, Graham and Yuma was over $2,418,450 pounds, and besides a large amount of vegetables were raised. Maricopa cut 45,000 tons of hay, and made 2,400 gallons of syrup from sorghum. There were about 2,000 tons of hay cut in Pima and Cochise counties. The assessment of real and personal property of five counties for the year is $10,500,000. The bullion output of the Territory during the year is as follows: Tombstone, $140,129.53; Harshaw, bullion $79,500; ore shipped from the district, $45,000. Yuma and Mohave counties silver, $103,000; gold, $64,000. Silver King, $1,800,000. Shipments from Globe district by Casa Grande, $78,000. Tip Top, $288,512.32; Bowie, $2,862.81; other points in Pima county, gold dust, $40,150; silver bullion, $51,516. Of the last sum $14,500 is supposed to have come from Sonora. The Vulture Mill, running eighty stamps, has not been heard from. This makes a total output, so far as heard from, of $2,493,676.60. Total output of Harshaw Co. since the commencement is $1,155,154.49. Total from Tip Top, $1,212,925.62.

The copper output was as follows: Copper Queen, 4,560,755 pounds; Clifton, 3,734,940 pounds; Huachuca, 2,900 pounds; Carrie, of Globe, 82,000 pounds; Neptune, 65,000. Total, 8,098,495 pounds. The average richness of the copper output of 1880 did not exceed 2,500,000 pounds, giving an increase for '81 of 5,598,495 pounds. There was a large amount of high grade silver ore shipped of which no account was taken, or the Silver King concentrations, which will run up into many thousands. The Star predicts that the silver and gold bullion output for 1881 will reach $25,000,000 and the copper output over 40,000,000 pounds, as that industry is yet in its infancy. The Copper Queen alone propose to add another furnace in six weeks and promise an output of 1,250,000 pounds per month. Several other companies in Arizona are also planning to increase their output. Three in Santa Rita, two additional in Silver Bell, four in Santa Catalina Mountains, and several north of Globe. All have vast quantities of copper ore in sight. Their success is assured. As the old year goes out Arizona's prosperity is bounding in every industry and we prize California silver, gold and copper bullion for her grain, fruit and manufactured goods. This great output of the year has been a good result of the Southern Pacific Railroad, which is highly appreciated by the people of the Territory.

The Cincinnati Art Museum, which will open in a few days, probably, will contain eighteen pieces from the Winter Palace, St. Petersburg, among them a part of the toilet service of the Czarina Anna Ivanovna, who died in 1795; fifty-nine pieces of the Hermitage collection, St. Petersburg; sixty from the Treasury of the Palace, Moscow, and thirty-six from the Treasury of the Patriarch of Moscow.

He found that the luminous power of the arc was considerably weakened and very unstable; that the arc does not ignite paper held 0.001m. above it; that it is very mobile; that it is attracted and extinguished by a magnet, and that more ozone is generated than when the arc is not cooled.

SAGEBRUSH SKETCHES.

How Mark Twain's Brightest Effort was Kept from Print.

Some Reminiscences of Virginia City Newspapers Men—A Kid Glove Mining Expert's Mistake—Sam Davis and his Fiddle.

When Mark Twain was doing local work on the Virginia City (Nevada) Enterprise, Dennis McCarthy was managing editor and part owner of the paper. One night a new saloon was opened—one of the gorgeous affairs of polished woods, mirrors, fine old-glass, silver ware, and wines and liquors that would do for the sideboard of a fashionable metropolitan club—one of those surprises that cause equal wonder and delight to strange travelers in sagebrush lands. It was an important occasion, as its elegance and two faro games were evidences of prosperous times, which every investor in mining camp property had already learned to believe. It was an event, the knowledge of which in San Francisco was worth more than an advertisement to this young camp than a strike of $500 rock. It reflected dignity and stability upon the camp, and in more ways than one gave its merchants courage in asking credit in San Francisco.

"This was that McCarthy said to Mark Twain: 'Sam, we must notice this opening to-night, and as I had rather do an editorial on the 'Precision of the Equinoxes' than write a business notice, you will have to do it.'"

The ethics of journalism sometimes so lapse in mining camps that the managing and city editors do, upon times, talk in this friendly, easy way with each other.

"There is a box of assorted wines and liquors in the other room," McCarthy added, "and perhaps you may get some inspiration from that."

In those days Clemens never wrote anything that was not funny, or alleged to be so, and he determined, after viewing the box of assorted inspirations, to write a funny business notice. The idea in itself struck him as something funny, and he lit his pipe in just the right mood to do good work.

HIS PREPARATIONS.

He took out of the box all the bottles and arranged them in long rows, with the wines of simple names first, and the more difficult ones following in order to the last bottle, which contained a wine of complicated, mixed and impossible-to-be-pronounced name. Sam thought he would do a rather neat thing by describing each bottle as though he were sampling from each, and in such a manner that the reader would be vividly impressed with the belief that the writer had started in sober and continued writing and sampling and describing until he was in a state of diagonal inebriety. The progressing complexity of names would assist the effect very much, and with the work all planned out in advance, Clemens sat down, smoking industriously, and only referring to the labels of the bottles. He wrote well, in peculiar conceit with the idea, and in order to keep strictly to his work until through, never uncorked a single bottle. McCarthy, who went into the local room just as Clemens had finished, and heard the article read, told me only a short time ago that Mark Twain never before or since did a more artistically grotesque piece of work than that same "star notice." The copy was passed in, and about one o'clock in the morning Clemens returned to the office to read a proof of the article.

He had only read a little while before his eyes bulged with desperate news. His pet idea, his quaint conceit, read straight and matter-of-fact like any ordinary business notice. He gasped and called for the copy. The foreman brought it, and to him the now speechless and livid humorist pointed out what had been done. The foreman took both copy and proof into the composition room, and yelled out "What infernal idiot set this saloon notice of Mr. Clemens?"

AN ASTUTE COMPOSITOR.

The man who had set the article (the Enterprise legend were not read by copy then) advanced to the foreman took him to one side and with a knowing smile said, "I set that thing, but as soon as I got through a few pages I saw plain enough that Clemens was drunk—awful drunk—when he wrote it, so I straightened the whole thing out. I wouldn't have taken the trouble, only I heard McCarthy say the other day that the next time Clemens got drunk he'd let him out."

When this was told to Clemens he took his blue pencil and crossed the proof, remarking in a strained, hard voice: "When a printer does set out to be a humorist he beats 'em."

Dennis McCarthy, Joe Goodman, Mark Twain, Dan de Quille, Joe Goodwin, all more or less widely known now, have at times given each their distinctive features to the pages of the Enterprise, and at one time the first four, I think, worked on the paper together. Then they would adjourn in the cool of a summer's evening to the old brewery down in the Sixmile Canon, where McCarthy would order beer, Goodman make sweitzer-kase sandwiches, Clemens softly climb the fence of a neighboring garden in search of sprout onions, and Dan de Quille tell startling lies to the landlord, until that worthy was in such a confused state of mind that keeping anything like a correct record of beer and sandwiches was out of the question. After that, they would return up town, as Clemens would say "to circulate among our constituents, gentlemen, with breaths smelling like buzzards, sirs!"

Judge Goodwin and Congressman Daggett went to the Enterprise afterward, and although McCarthy and Dan de Quille are the only ones of the six who have stuck to the Comstock, they have all said and written, and still do say and write, many pleasant things about the sagebrush land.

AN AMUSING INCIDENT.

And this reminds me of an incident I was witness to in the Enterprise editorial rooms only a few years ago. A kid glove mining expert from this city happened in the rooms, and looking out of the east window, at the great sweep of hills away over the Humboldt Mountains, the Carson sink, the twenty-six-mile desert—but all colored with the prevailing sombre sage-brush hills, turned away from the window with a shudder and said: "What a dreadful thing it would be to die here, and be buried in those hills." Goodwin dearly loves those hills, and as Sam Davis had been playing the fiddle at his house the night before, he felt particularly savage that afternoon. He fixed his cold gray eyes upon the unhappy expert, and in a voice he fetched from the lowest levels of his chest said: "Dreadful for you to die and be buried in those hills? Yes, sir, dreadful for those hills? You cannot see the stern nobility of their lines, and color, and very bleakness. They prompt no thought to you, sir, of mailed sentinels out-watching death in silent faithfulness. What right have you to speak of those hills, whose majestic grandeur ever beckons mortals to nobler, purer, higher ambitions, to—damn you, sir. Good day, I'm busy."

I spoke of Sam Davis's fiddling, and I remind myself that a sketch of sagebrush newspaper men, with no mention of Sam's fiddle, would be indeed incomplete. Not that Sam's fiddle is a newspaper man, or anything like that, but if I could manage to say a few kind things about that fiddle I feel that I would gain the deep regard of every one of the fraternity who ever met Sam's fiddle and Sam at the same time. The fraternity would feel that even at this late day the first pleasant word about Sam and his fiddle would be acceptable, as a novelty. Take 'em apart and neither are bad; though how Sam would look taken apart, I don't know, and as the fiddle, when not in use, was securely locked in a sheet iron case, none of his friends ever had an opportunity to take it apart. That iron case was the only evidence of an appreciation of his friends' feeling toward the fiddle I ever saw Sam display. But, as I said, taken separately, neither the fiddle nor Sam was objectionable. But no amount of moral suasion did any good with Sam or the fiddle when they got together. Peaceful neighborhoods were devastated, and children's confidence in the justice of Providence totally destroyed through one short season of Sam and his fiddle. His seasons always were short, for checked and disappointed handladies kept him moving from place to place when they found there was no way of stealing the fiddle. I hear Sam has removed to Salt Lake, and if he has his fiddle with him I can suggest a way of solving the Mormon problem, if any one will suggest a way of protecting Sam from the Mormons while he plays the fiddle at 'em.

Costly Ball Costumes.

[From the New York Evening Telegram.]

The ball costumes for the season surpass in beauty all prior attempts in expensive dress productions. The industries of the house were never so magnificent or costly as they are now. Extravagance in dress has reached a degree that is absolutely astonishing. One is apt to be incredulous of the truth of the statement that a dress texture over cost $75 a yard, but it is a fact. A dress recently imported has a front ornamental piece that is valued at $800. The importation in ready-made toilets for ceremonious wear has already exceeded the number sold during last winter's gaiety. The general opinion is that full dress toilets this winter will be in great demand, and that even those that are very costly will find ready sale. Manufacturers have made marvelous improvements in dress materials, some of which are as brilliant and almost as valuable as fine jewelry. A style of applique garniture introduced this winter is a marvel of gorgeous effects. The set consists of an apron and shaped applications for the waist and sleeves. The prices run from $250 to $900 per set. Flat garnitures composed wholly of feathers are very beautiful, and ornament ball costumes very handsomely. The price for the best is $17 per yard. A garniture formed of jewel-like colored beads and hand-wrought embroidery comes to $250 per set, which consists of a tablier and sleeve applications. A trimming composed of pear-shaped Roman pearls, chenille and gold beads comes to $30 per yard.

Suspected the Lawyer.

The law provides a defender for every arraigned criminal, no matter how well known his crime, but it will not do for a bad man's counselor to try to make his crime a joke, and to try to ridicule it out of court. Such a course fairly leaves the lawyer himself open to distrust. Counselor Higgins, of the State of —, was exceedingly adroit in defending a prisoner, and would sometimes laugh down an indictment for a small offense. A fellow-one Smith—being on trial for stealing a turkey, the counselor attempted to give a good, human turn to the affair. "Why, gentlemen of the jury," said he, "this is really a very small affair. I wonder any one could bring such a complaint into court. If we are going on at this rate we shall have to send to court on our hands." Higgins then alluded to the "foraging expeditions" of his college days, and the boys thought it no harm to take poultry here and there once in a while, when they wanted a sly supply. But notwithstanding this appeal, the jury convicted the prisoner. After the court rose, one of the jury, a plain old farmer, meeting the counselor, complimented him on his ingenuity. "And now, Squire," said he, fixing a rather knowing look upon him, "I should like to ask you one question: Which road do you take, in going home, the upper or the lower one?"

"The lower," said the counselor. "Well, then, it's no matter. I only wanted to observe that if you were going my way, I would just jog on before you, and look up my hen-house."

Among the experiments now being conducted by a chemist at the Royal Southern Society, England, are tests which will or may disclose more of the powers of carbon, already well known as a filtering medium, and the removal of ammonia from sewage. It has been found that all the ammonia is taken up by the carbon, as is indicated by testing the fluid after it has passed through the filter, and the resultant is a material valuable for breaking up and manuring heavy land.

A sudden fall of temperature will suspend the spontaneous movements of the sensitive plant, and the application of chloroform and like anesthetics will suspend provoked movements.

AUTOGRAPHS.

The Rare Collection Made by a Brooklyn Youth.

Pertinent Quotations and Sentiments from Presidents, Poets and Novelists.

[New York Tribune.]

Edward W. Bok of Brooklyn, aged 18, has a hobby which he rides with diligence and persistence. His ruling passion is the collection of autographs. In his pursuit he is daunted neither by unanswered letters nor verbal refusals. Beginning on August 27, 1880, with his father's signature, he has accumulated a collection of about 300 names. This is of exceptional interest. Mr. Bok possesses the signatures of emperors, presidents, dukes, prime ministers, generals, poets, novelists, scientists, orators, financiers, and professional men and women of eminence. Nearly all the names are those of persons of prominence at the present day. Some have been obtained in answer to requests three or four times repeated by letter. Others have been secured by personal interviews, and some have been secured for the collector by his friends.

Mr. Bok is employed in the office of the attorney of the Western Union Telegraph Company at No. 195 Broadway. His father, recently deceased, was widely known as a linguist abroad, and at the time of his death held the position of translator for the same company. When the son failed in his attempts to secure autographs, the father often wrote personally for the autograph, thus obtaining many names not usually seen. In such collections Mr. Bok states that autograph-hunting is increasing here to a surprising extent, but it is said by distinguished visitors not to have assumed one-tenth of the proportions here that it has abroad. Albion W. Tourgee and Thomas A. Edison wrote Mr. Bok that they accumulated drawers full of requests for autographs, and occasionally devoted a day simply to signing their names. Another prominent man receives an average of thirty letters a day asking for his autograph.

WILHELM AND VON BISMARCK.

The chronicle of many of the distinguished men whose names Mr. Bok possesses would be the despair of a writing master. His collection is probably one of the best in the country in the distinction of the writers. In a document appointing Dr. Bok Vice-Consul in Holland appear the signatures of Emperor William and Bismarck. Just six inches below the way lines of the "Wilhelm" is the crabbed, stiff Von Bismarck. This distance is required by law between the signatures of the Emperor and a subject. An official document appointing Mr. Bok's father Consul in the province of North Holland, is signed "Willem" in a rather effeminate hand, the signature of King William III of Netherlands. The only appointments receiving the royal signature are those in the diplomatic corps. The latter document is certified by a Minister of Justice. The signature "Frederic, Pr des Nederlandes" appears on an appointment of Mr. Bok Sr., as the Master of the Dutch Lodge. Next in the list of royal personages is the plain, bold signature of Kalakama, obtained at the Hotel Brunswick through a member of his suite. The Duke of Sutherland signed his name in the young collector's book at the Windsor, remarking somewhat irritably "I don't see the sense of collecting autographs." Two letters bearing the stamp of the Privy Seal Office are signed with a name resembling Pigott, which is in reality Argyll. He was requested to obtain the autograph of the Queen and the Prince of Wales and replied: "I regret that it is not in my power to supply you with the autographs referred to in your letter of the 26th of June." "W. E. Gladstone" in firm characters is written on an envelope as a frank. The envelope contained a note from his secretary, saying that Mr. Gladstone received too many applications to send autographs to each, but that the envelope bore one of his regular franks. An order of admission to the House of Commons bears "John Bright" in fine legible letters. "At your father's wish, Charles Bradlaugh," was the reply to a letter from Dr. Bok after his son had failed. The name is almost enclosed in the flourish of the "C." But the letter is to be returned to him for the date, as this is a matter of prime importance to the professional autograph hunters.

A COLLECTOR'S PERTINACITY.

When the Marquis de Rochambeau was receiving Governor Cornell and his staff at the Fifth Avenue Hotel he was surprised by an appearance of Mr. Bok, autograph book in hand, and the result is "A de Rochambeau," in delicate feminine characters. "Edw Thornton," in a coarse, bold hand, was signed both on the envelope and inclosed sheet that came in reply to a letter. Mr. Bok has several signatures of U. S. Grant, with one of his wife, Julia D. Grant, and the business enough on our side of his Cabinet, including Hamilton Fish, W. W. Belknap, B. H. Bristow and George M. Robeson. Accompanying these are the autographs of a Wheeler and the Cabinet—Messrs. Edwards, Sherman, Devens, Ramsey, Goff, Maynard, Kery, Thompson and Schurz. Three letters produced no effect on Mr. Thompson, but he yielded at a personal interview. The late President simply sent his autograph at first, but in response to another request through Mrs. Garfield he wrote:

MENTOR, O., November 13, 1880.

DEAR MASTER BOK: In answer to your request I take pleasure in saying that I am, very truly yours,

An illustration of the high pressure at which General Garfield was living at the time is found in the repetition of the concluding syllable of pleasure—"pleasureure."

Mrs. Garfield wrote: I have never objected to having my name placed beside General Garfield's. It is pleasant, therefore, to grant your request. With kind regards, very truly yours, LUCRETIA RANDOLPH GARFIELD.

Signed notes from the members of the Cabinet, Messrs. James, MacVeagh, Lincoln, Windom, Hunt and Kirkwood were written in July or August, and all dwell upon the conditions of the President. Secretary Hunt wrote as follows under the date of September 1st:

Sir: Everyone who knew the qualities of President Garfield before an attempt was made upon his life by an assassin, recognized his intellectual power, his enlarged patriotism and his generous nature. But two weary months of suffering, when his life has been to his own knowledge trembling in the balance, have revealed in him a patient courage, a depth of tenderness and an unselfish devotion to others; a broad charity of judgment; a trust in God; and a loyalty to family, friends and country that have been known only to the few who have been nearest to him in his hours of trial, and whilst developing the true greatness of his character in their eyes, have bound him to them by ties of the most sincere and affectionate regard.

Thank God, I believe the life of this noble man will be spared. Your obedient servant, WM. A. HUNT.

Mr. Bok has also President Arthur's signature, and intends as soon as events permit, to secure those of his Cabinet. A letter from General Sherman complains of the difficulty of writing with no subject to write about. The bold signature of P. H. Sheridan is attached to a letter, which is regarded as a great triumph in autograph collecting. Three letters drew no response from the late General Burnside, but his autograph was finally procured from a friend. General McClellan gave his signature after some personal persuasion. General Hancock's letter is peculiar in its chronology. There are long down strokes, very heavily shaded, starting abruptly at different angles. General Rosecrans, John C. Fremont, Fitz John Porter, and Generals Kilpatrick and Banks are among the other Union Generals, and Beauregard, Early, Johnston and Longstreet among the Confederates. In connection with a letter from Dr. Schliemann, the explorer of Troy, the fact is interesting that Dr. Bok rescued him from the breakers when he was wrecked on the island of Texel, off the coast of Holland, and resuscitated him. The two afterward became warm friends.

POETS AND NOVELISTS.

The list of poets was headed with "A. Tennyson." This was the result of nine letters costing fifty cents each. Longfellow, on the contrary, is known among autograph hunters as one of the promptest to reply. Lowell sent his name after one or two letters. Bryant was procured from a friend, Robert Browning sent a quotation, John G. Whittier's round signature is appended to a verse of poetry, and Holmes signs a verse of "The Chambered Nautilus." Alexander Dumas writes in French, "I weary myself, this is how it begins; he wearies me, this is how it ends. Such is in two words the story of the first fault of women." Jules Verne and De Lesseps also answered in French. A. C. Swinburne sent a short note. Another sheet bears the following:

Women can resist a man's love, a man's fame, a man's personal appearance and a man's money; but they cannot resist a man's tongue when he knows how to talk to them. From "The Woman in White," by WILKIE COLLINS.

Another sheet bears simply: Edward Bok, calligrapher, from Charles Reade, Kakograph.

William Black, Anthony Trollope, Mrs. Oliphant and George Bancroft are among the signatures of other literary persons.

Professor Max Muller wrote from Oxford: No language without reason. No reason without language. Ruskin wrote in response to a letter from Dr. Bok:

It is a great joy to hear of a good son in these days of disobedience. I wish I could write my name better for him; had I better invited my father to write many other things in my name? I write more of late years, with at least as much attention as my more popular work.

Charles Darwin, in a curious, jerky hand, writes a letter saying: My collecting led me to science, and I hope that it may have had some effect on you, for there is no greater satisfaction than to add how ever little to the general stock of knowledge.

PATTI'S WOES.

How the Prima Dona Sung for the Michigan Sufferers.

A Ridiculously Mismanaged Concert from Beginning to End—The Great Singer Suffers a Humiliation.

In the goodness of her heart, Patti generously agreed to sing for the benefit of the Michigan sufferers. Unfortunately, the benefit concert was entrusted to the Mayor and his committee. They have made poor Patti suffer almost as much as anybody in Michigan. Her last "evening concert" is advertised this morning. This means that she is preparing to quit the country, disgusted at being turned into a laughing-stock by the muddling Mayor.

Just as the Mayor selects Mike Norton to represent him in politics, so he chose George N. Sanders to represent him at the Patti concert. Who is George N. Sanders? Nobody knows; but everybody knows what he has done. Yesterday the whole city was roaring over the reports of how George N. Sanders began the Patti concert with a long speech and was lissed into silence; how he brought poor Patti out and seated her on a cane-bottom chair to be stared at, until she fairly ran away; how he called for "three cheers for Patti" in the midst of the concert, and was again lissed down, and how he tried to adorn Patti with a wreath ten times too large for her, and only desisted when the indignant prima donna burst into tears of rage and shame.

The Directory tells us that George N. Sanders is a lawyer. One of the muddling Mayor's legal advisers, perhaps. At any rate, he is the Chairman of the Mayor's Committee. As such, his first move was to issue free invitations to the platform of the Patti concert, regulating his invitations by the politics and piques of the Mayor. He invited the President, the Supreme Court, the Army, the Navy, the Governors of various States and the Mayors of various cities, all of whom were detained elsewhere by their duties, or where would have been the room for the paying audience? Then he invited 150 wealthy citizens, carefully omitting all good Democrats. He invited Jim Bennett, who has run away to Europe. He invited Rev. Drs. Armitage, Hall, Howland, McGlynn, Morgan and others; but omitted the Cardinal. He invited the Judges; but omitted Surrogate Calvin. He invited Abram S. Hewitt, who is abroad, but omitted Congressman-elect Flower and Hardy. He invited Sammy Tilden, who has just been beaten again; but omitted John Kelley, who has again defeated him. Thus the muddling Mayor turned the invitations to the Patti concert into a partisan crusade, and what was the result? Why, the lesson of Tuesday week was repeated on Wednesday evening. The people came and laughed at the Mayor, his muddles and his chairman of committee, and poor Patti was rendered ridiculous by the same mismanagement as that which Mike Nortonized the Mayor's party at the polls.

The receipts from the public for the Patti benefit are said to amount to $10,000; but the opinion of the muddling Mayor hints that only $5,000 will reach the Michigan sufferers, the balance being swallowed up in "expenses." What expenses? Patti and her troupe volunteered their services; the newspapers donated their advertisements; where, then, could $5,000 be dropped in "expenses, pray? Is George N. Sanders as expensive as that? We cannot believe it. The public will insist upon seeing the itemized accounts. It is bad enough to have the concert spoiled, and Patti frightened away, by the muddling Mayor; but to pay $5,000 for the muddle is too much for the patience of the people of New York.

Advice to Girls.

Give your best sympathy. There is no greater human power than the tenderness of woman. If you can minister to some one in sickness, lessen somebody's distress, or put a flower in some poor home, you have done a thing that you will always be glad to think of. You will be remembered, and a woman asks no grander monument than to live in hearts. Not far from my home was the plain cottage of an Irishwoman and her only son—a brave young fellow—dying of consumption contracted in the ranks. In my visit to him, I carried him some lovely roses. The next time I went the mother said: "He never let the roses go out of his hands, miss. He held 'em when he died, and the last he ever said was: 'Give my blessing to the young lady for bringin' the flowers.' And the desolate mother buried them with him, as if they were precious things he possessed. The blessing of that poor Irish youth will be a pleasant memory. Be gentle. Strength of character and sweetness of disposition are in no wise incompatible. Doubtless, the most winsome nature on earth is that which combines the naturalness and significance of a child with the strength of a true woman. There are people whose touch is balm to us; restful persons, whose companionship is a benediction—who draw out the best of our natures—whose presence we may scarce note, but whose absence creates a void which the heart hungers to have filled. The remembrance of a tender word will last long after you are in your grave. A little ragged boot-black fell on the icy streets of Chicago one winter's day. A cheery young lady passing said, as she helped him up: "Did you hurt yourself?" His face beamed as, after her departure, he said to his companions: "I'd like to fall a dozen times if I could have her to pick me up like that."

A harsh voice in a woman is like a discord in the sweetest music. One can easily get into complaining and dissatisfied tones. Have a sunny face; nothing will do this save genuine kindness in the heart. Every girl ought to make it possible to have people say of her: "She brightens every life she touches." If you never do aught else in life, bring sunshine into every heart you meet.

It is asserted by M. Hement that deaf-mutes who have been taught to speak articulate with the accent of their country, thus indicating organic conformations of the mechanism of speech similar to those of their parents. This is doubted by M. Blanchard.

A Harmless Runaway.

Friday evening about seven o'clock two ladies concluded to take a drive for the benefit of their health. They accordingly went down to Edwards' stables and hired a horse and buggy. All was smooth sailing until they had got out as far as the hospital on the Mission road, when an unceremonious Arizona bronco came in sight. The horse happened to be one that had not been under the training of Prof. Sample and he became frightened and started "go as you please" for town. The buggy was soon overturned and the occupants thrown out. They were not much hurt, however, as one of them gave chase after the horse. Later in the evening the horse was found hitched to a fence on Hoyle Heights. The buggy was but little damaged by the runaway. Next time those ladies want to go riding they will probably take along some male friend to do the driving.

Failed to Agree.

The case of the People vs. Ed. Nutting, who sold an old Southern Pacific Railroad ticket to one Marsh a few weeks ago, and was arrested for scalping, was called in the city criminal court yesterday afternoon, before a jury. The case was given to the jury at 2 p. m., but after four hours' discussion they failed to agree, standing ten for conviction and two for acquittal.

PERSONAL MENTION.

F. W. Wiborg, of the firm of Ault & Wiborg, the celebrated printing ink manufacturers of Cincinnati, Ohio, is in the city. This is his second trip to this coast this year, and perhaps he may see him this way again soon, when the orange blossoms are in bloom. This is a fine country in which to spend a honeymoon, and Mr. Wiborg knows it.

H. S. Crocker of San Francisco is at the Cosmopolitan.

A. B. Perkins of Ohio is at the Pico House.

Downey Items.

We are of opinion that not less than 15,000 boxes of raisins were put up this year in the San Joaquin valley, and in most instances, the price paid has been $2 per box. Nearly all have been rated No. 1, London layers. The crop next year will be much larger. A great many new vineyards will be planted in the valley this season.

Mr. Peter Eschelbach, proprietor of the Santa Ana distillery, informs us that he made between fifty and sixty thousand gallons of wine this year. He proposes to ship three or four car loads to San Francisco in a few days, and some time next year ten or twelve car loads to the same destination.

Los Nietos valley produced about 200 tons of castor beans this season. Most of the crop was purchased by the proprietor of the Downey Oil Works, and is being made into first-class castor oil.—Downey Signal.

Coulter; address, Judge Baxter; declamation, Edward J. Harper; recitation, Miss Lillian Fellows; solo, Miss Clara Hutchins; address, Hon. G. W. Wells; chorus—"Hold the Fort," congregation.

Elder Webb's Work.

Elder J. W. Webb, the great English temperance lecturer, held forth at Good Templar's Hall last night before a large and enthusiastic audience. The lecturer dwelt with much feeling and eloquence on the curse of intemperance in the United States at the present day. After the lecture a number of persons put in their applications for membership. A vocal and instrumental programme was carried out by the members of the lodge. The Elder will lecture this evening.

People who have lost all faith in their watches and in watchmakers can have their watches restored and good time made out of their watches by taking them to Goldman, the practical watchmaker, 28 Spring street.

Now is the time to secure bargains in stationery, blank books, cigars and tobacco, at 28 Spring street. Everything will be closed out at cost to make room for a new stock of clocks, watches, etc.

A paper says: The School Committee have decided to erect a new school house large enough to accommodate 500 scholars, five stories high.

A HOSS PARADE.

Professor Sample's Procession of Tamed Animals.

A Remarkable Exhibition of the Genius of a Horse Trainer—The Entertainment at the School.

The citizens of Los Angeles witnessed one of the most interesting processions that has paraded the streets of this city for many a day yesterday.

For some time past Professor Sample has been in this city teaching the lovers of the noblest work of God, the horse, how to train him.

From the exhibition yesterday it was fully proven to the satisfaction of the most skeptical that Sample is the most thorough horse trainer in the United States, if not in the world.

The owners of the horses in the procession will testify that less than thirty days ago every animal was ungovernable to a considerable extent. But the reader, if he saw the parade, noticed that every horse was led by boys not over twelve years of age. This is proof positive that every man should understand the modus operandi of taming horses.

The procession started from Temple street stable about 12 o'clock, noon, and marched through the principal streets. The Professor led the caravan, seated in a fine buggy drawn by two magnificent black horses. The City Band followed; then came the riproaring mustangs that had been trained. The first one had a motto on his sides which read: "I was the boss of Denker's ranch, but Sample got the best of me." Then followed nine horses, with mottoes which read like this: "I was the bucking bronco, that had my tail full of cuckle burrs, and I have been Sampled." "I was a nollifier, but have been conquered." "I was Wild Bill of Temple Street Stable." "I was the worst pill in the box, but Sample got the best of me." "I was a balker, but Sample made me go." "I wouldn't back, but I do now." "I am the one that crippled my master and killed my mate, but will never do it again." The last one had: "I was a high kicker, but Sample took it all out of me." The Professor's man Sullivan, who led the boss of Denker's ranch, made much sport for the small boys with his antics.

At the Episcopal Church this morning at 11 a. m. the Rev. Birdsell will preach on the subject of "The Sabbath Question; which Day, the First or Seventh?"

The address published in yesterday's Times as being delivered by the Rev. Father McNemer, will be delivered to-day at 3 p. m. by the Clerics of Mary.
